Story (edit it if you like)

In the heart of Yellowstone National Park's layered caldera rock formations, a man in a white hoodie and pink shorts stands beside a woman wearing a navy "Virginia Commonwealth University" sweatshirt, smiling as they enjoy a quiet moment on a wooden deck overlooking the vast landscape under an overcast sky. This serene setting mirrors the peaceful solitude found in other scenes of nature, such as the elk grazing peacefully in a meadow near a tree-lined hillside or the couple sitting on a deck to breakfast by a picturesque lake. These tranquil encounters with wildlife and scenic beauty serve as a backdrop for exploring how people can find joy in the vastness of the wilderness.

Title: The Silent Caldera & The Waffle House

Verse 1
In the center of Yellowstone's dark, layered caldera,
A man in a white hoodie stands beside a woman.
She wears her navy Virginia Commonwealth sweatshirt tight,
As they sip warm drinks by the wooden deck.
The vast landscape stretches out beneath their feet,
Where elk graze peacefully near a tree line.
They watch the sunset paint the sky with gold,
While silence holds the heart of this wild home.

Chorus
We're in Yellowstone's quiet, layered rock formation,
Smiling as we stand beside a woman in navy.
Life is found in these vast, overcast skies and meadows,
Where people share their joy in the quiet woods.
It's not just nature; it's this place where they sleep,
Finding peace with wildlife and scenic beauty deep.

Verse 2
Look to the geothermal pool rising from its surface,
A stark contrast against all that is still.
They work together to preserve this unique ecosystem,
To keep the wild alive and the land safe.
Though no one is watching within the barns or mountains,
Their legacy lives on in their quiet conversations.

Chorus
We're in Yellowstone's quiet, layered rock formation,
Smiling as we stand beside a woman in navy.
Life is found in these vast, overcast skies and meadows,
Where people share their joy in the quiet woods.
It's not just nature; it's this place where they sleep,
Finding peace with wildlife and scenic beauty deep.

Bridge
As days turn into evenings, life unfolds in vibrant ways,
In a million-dollar cowboy bar at night.
The crowd lights up the barns and mountain tops,
While deer rest or couples watch the peaks go by.
Preservation takes place, but joy remains,
Through shared experiences woven deep within the land.

Chorus
We're in Yellowstone's quiet, layered rock formation,
Smiling as we stand beside a woman in navy.
Life is found in these vast, overcast skies and meadows,
Where people share their joy in the quiet woods.
It's not just nature; it's this place where they sleep,
Finding peace with wildlife and scenic beauty deep.
